

Prof. Luca Crivelli

Professor and Head of Department, SUPSI;
Academic Director, SSPH+

Luca Crivelli, PhD, is Full Professor of Health Economics and Policy at the University of Applied Sciences and Arts of Southern Switzerland (SUPSI), where he also heads the Department of Business Economics, Health and Social Care. Since 2024, he serves as Academic Director of the Swiss School of Public Health+ (SSPH+), and he is Titular Professor at the Faculty of Economics at Università della Svizzera italiana (USI).

His research focuses on health system governance, federalism in healthcare, and comparative health policy, with a special interest in managed competition models and public health insurance reforms. He has contributed to key national initiatives such as the “Health2020” strategy and the Corona Immunitas cohort study. Additionally, he has served on several expert panels and editorial boards, including the Swiss Academy of Medical Sciences and international journals in health economics and policy.
