

Katrin Zöfel
Science Journalist
SRF

Katrin Zöfel is a science journalist with more than 20 years of experience. She majored in biology and trained as a journalist at German Public Radio. Since 10 years she's part of the editorial science team at SRF, Swiss Public Radio and Television. Her main interests lie where science and public debate intersect. Some of her most profound and formative experiences she made during reporting on and living through the Corona pandemic and its many, many layers of debate and controversy: "What stuck with me is a phrase I stumbled upon somewhere on social media during the first year: 'Although infection is a biological phenomenon, an epidemic is a deeply social phenomenon.'"